Cobham Primary School's Behaviour Principles

These are the behaviours and qualities that we role model, as leaders of learning, that we teach to our children to use within the school and the wider community and beyond their time at Cobham. We aim for the children to show tolerance for people, for individual beliefs, all cultures and actions that they may not always understand and to show respect for others as well as themselves. We expect that everyone will know that working together will make us unified and give us strength in our opinions and actions, whilst always trying to be truthful and honest in every thought, action and deed. Our TRUST Weeks, weekly assemblies, PSHE lessons and Anti Bullying Weeks each year raise and teach all these issues. These are the behaviour principles that all stakeholders at Cobham hold true and act upon each and every day. Where needed for our children with SEN, we make reasonable allowances and adjustments, but always expect all children to work towards holding these values dear as these are the values that make Cobham truly special.
